

SUMMARY OF REQUIREMENTS FOR EXISTING STATIONARY
COMPRESSION IGNITION (CI) ENGINES LOCATED AT AREA SOURCES
40 C.F.R. PART 63 SUBPART ZZZZ

None of the provisions of the above referenced regulations apply to the following Category 1 Stationary Engines:
None are:

- The engine is a portable engine or a stationary engine of less than 100 horsepower and is used for agricultural, construction, or other non-stationary purposes.
- Emergency generator sets used for emergency power.
- Air conditioning units used for space conditioning.

- operation and replacement needed

req re en for cr n c e f on y ee e o

Co p nce e n

- Cond c n n perform nce e re e ery . or of oper on or ye r . c e er co e f r e ery ye r f ed e
- end No f c on of Co p nce n d y fo o n co p e on of e n perform nce e or

Reporting Requirements

Matters of the present nature are not to be reported in the annual report, nor are they to be reported in the annual report of the company. The company is not to be reported in the annual report of the company. The company is not to be reported in the annual report of the company.

or combined of or per year energy efficiency can be used for the following purposes:

- maintenance.
- energy demand response for Energy Efficiency Act Level.
 - respond to energy demand where it is 5 percent or more in the end.
 - operation for 5 or more of the following: or the order of the code or the order of the power demand.

The 3 end energy efficiency certificate process, any energy efficiency operation or energy demand response on.

Energy efficiency certificate for 5 or more energy demand response operation or energy demand response on.